How to Get from Albrecht Dürer Airport in Nuremberg to Iwalewahaus in Bayreuth

By using the public transport it will take around 1,5 hours to get from Nuremberg airport to Iwalewahaus in Bayreuth. If you are confronted with any problems during your journey, give us a call under +49 (0)921 5545 00.

Using the Metro from the Nuremberg Airport to the Main Station in Nuremberg

You will find the metro station (“U-Bahn“) when leaving the airport at its main exit. Use the train line “U2” with direction “Nürnberg Röthenbach“ to get to the main station in Nuremberg “Nürnberg Hbf“. This will take 13 minutes.

You can buy your ticket either at the information desk in the airport or at a ticket machine. Since Nuremberg and Bayreuth belong to one linked transport system, you only need to buy one ticket for the whole trip from Nuremberg airport to Iwalewahaus. It also covers the bus in Bayreuth. However it is not a day-ticket. For a single adult please choose category “10+T“ (whole VGN area), which at the moment is 10,80 € (last update September 2015).

Walk to Iwalewahaus from the Train Station

You can easily walk to Iwalewahaus from the train station within 10 minutes. When you leave the train station go left and follow the main road “Bahnhofstraße” down the hill to the big crossroad. The crossing street is “Hohenzollernring”. Traverse this crossing and go straight onto “Luitpoldplatz”. When you reach the end of the road, turn left into “Opernstraße”. From here you already see Iwalewahaus. It is 100 metres in front of you.

Alternative: Using the Bus from the Train Station in Bayreuth to Iwalewahauss

You will find the bus stop in front of the station building on the opposite side of the road. When you leave the station the city centre is on your left. Choose one of the following bus lines: 302, 303, 305, 309 or 328. The direction is "ZOH". Get off at "Luitpoltplatz" which is the next stop.
